Art Unit: 1712

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1 to 6, 8 to 10 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wakabayashi et al. in view of Kimura et al. for reasons of record.

Applicants argue that the problems encountered with polysiloxanes differ from those of organic polymers and that the problem of stability for Si-O-Si bonds does not exist in the case of polyethers. This is not persuasive both references are drawn to RTV compositions and Kimura et al. specifically indicate that either polyethers or polysiloxanes can be used, providing one with a reasonable expectation of success in using polyethers for polysiloxanes in an equivalent manner. Applicants have not shown any unexpected results, with regards to stability or anything else, that would negate this expected equivalence. Applicants provide no support for their assertion that those skilled in the art would understand that these polymers are not equivalent, especially in view of the contradictory teachings of Kimura et al. The compositions do not appear to be totally different as argued since they are both moisture curing RTV compositions having the same utility. As such this rejection is maintained.

3. Claims 1 to 6, 8 to 10 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schiller et al. in view of Sattlegger et al. for reasons of record.

Applicants argue that the present application improves storage stability whereas Schiller et al. is concerned with rheology. Note, however, that a prima facie case of obviousness (for a composition) does not require the solution of the same problem or recognition of the same advantages as the applicants invention. In re Dillon 16 USPQ2d 1897 (CAFC, en banc, 1990), which overrules In re Dillon 13 USPQ 2d 1337 and In re Wright 6 USPQ 2d 1959. As such this argument is not persuasive.

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
